After 30 years in business, Rosetta Stone Associates of Nashua, NH has been acquired by Eurotext Translations of Dublin, Ireland

On October 14, 2002, an old era ended and a new one began for Rosetta Stone Associates of Nashua, NH. After more than 30 years in business, John Furey sold his translation agency to Eurotext Translations Ltd of Dublin, Ireland, one of Europe's leading translation and localization companies. The two companies have operated a partnership for over two years, and recently it was agreed to integrate the two businesses completely.

Eurotext has a large production operation in Dublin, Ireland, a country recognized as the gateway to Europe for companies wishing to access this growing market of over 360 million people. They have customers throughout Europe, the US and Asia and intend working with Rosetta Stone Associates as their subsidiary to greatly strengthen their industry position on the East Coast of the United States over the coming months and years.

Rosetta Stone Associates has a smaller in-house operation in Nashua, New Hampshire, but works with over 2,000 translators and interpreters worldwide. Their services include translations, desktop publishing, localization, interpreting, voice-overs, foreign language and ESL instruction and cross-cultural training.

John Furey is also delighted to say that the existing Rosetta Stone staff and he will continue their work, with the support of their new colleagues from Eurotext Translations. The two companies match perfectly in their company cultures, both have an absolute commitment to customer service, quality and value and they look forward to continuing to provide their customers with the highest standards of translation and localization services.

The new East Coast company intends to continue to do business as Rosetta Stone Associates.
